Coach Michele Caron is the founder of My Life Coach.com and has been a successful Executive Life Coach to some of the world's smartest thought leaders from around the world for 15 years.

From NASA/CSA research, to medical care to software development, Coach Michele abandoned her promising career in science and technology to directly help people after the events of September 11, 2001. Since then she has launched several coaching related websites while working in depth with leaders in industry and community. She also has helped over 25,000 life coaches get started in their mission to help others. In her work with brilliant, successful people that are trying to take themselves to the next level, Coach Michele has found herself on the cutting edge of key understandings that form the linchpin between ordinary and extraordinary levels of joy, fulfillment and performance.

Coach Michele has been a regular speaker on radio including every Monday morning for a year in Toronto, Canada and on the BBC World service, and appeared in a week's long series on the Marilyn Denis show. She appears in the October 2017 release book, Swimming with Elephants, as original life coach to the popular author Sarah Bamford Seidelmann, igniting Sarah's transformation from physician to shaman.

It is Michele's mission to help individuals understand the keys to personal transformation. Once an individual taps into their true potential, they are able to spread massive change within their organizations, their communities, and their planet.
